Win Sales Calls with Prospects Who Are Ready to Buy

Identifying sales-ready opportunities and scheduling sales calls with prospects who are close to a spending decision is critical to maintaining a healthy pipeline. You create quick wins for your sales team and book new business that keeps your revenue projections on track.

Every B2B seller knows this. And yet prospecting often gets put on the back burner. Sales devotes its valuable resources to closing deals, and SDRs often focus on the volume of calls they can book, not the quality of the opportunity. You're left scrambling to fill in the gaps.

To win sales calls with decision-makers who are ready to buy, you need a data-driven approach to identifying in-market prospects who are actively researching your product or service. You need to be able to ramp up your prospecting efforts quickly to meet near-term revenue goals. You need call center professionals who understand how your business's core value proposition meets the needs of ideal target prospects. And you need an experienced team that's committed to cultivating sales-ready opportunities until that sales call is on the prospect's calendar.

You need the power of True Influence's AppointmentBase™.

Prospecting Powered by Intent and Expertise

AppointmentBase combines advanced market intelligence, our massive B2B contact database, and our team's decades of experience as a leader in B2B demand generation to create a powerful solution for identifying, prospecting, and booking appointments with sales-ready prospects.

100 percent data-driven: The AppointmentBase advantage begins with True Influence's database of 500 million B2B contacts, including firmographic information from Dun & Bradstreet. We identify high-level decision-makers who match your ideal customer profile, both in your target accounts and at buying organizations that may not be on your radar.

Intent uncovers opportunity: AppointmentBase uses powerful Intent Signal Monitoring intelligence from our category-defining InsightBase® Version 4.0 software to identify prospects, Buying Groups, and Demand Units within organizations who are actively researching purchases. InsightBase 4.0 uses AI, machine learning, and natural language processing to gather and review millions of intent signals every day. We use this powerful intelligence to refine any prospecting list, from named accounts to contact records generated by in-house or third-party demand generation programs. We focus on prospects that are ready to buy, which translates into more committed appointments with higher conversion rates for your sales team.

We become experts in your business: Our call center professionals work with you to develop interview talking options that go well beyond basic BANT or L5 qualification. We uncover the prospect's true challenges and needs to determine fit and value proposition alignment. We also gather intelligence about other prospects within the buying organization that, when coupled with contact and firmographic information from our database, gives you a 360-degree view of the demand unit that will make the purchase decision.

We close the loop: Based on our initial conversation with a prospect, we commit to a plan of follow-up calls or move the contact into a nurturing program – whatever it takes to land an appointment with a highly-fit, sales-ready opportunity. And when a prospect commits to meeting with sales, we book the appointment and deliver the contact directly to your CRM or sales engagement platform.

How AppointmentBase™ does it

True Influence's ability to identify and connect with the right business decision-makers makes it a leader in high-quality B2B demand generation. We deliver leads that convert 20 percent more frequently than our competitors, and we use the same highly-refined method to identify and prospect sales-ready opportunities with our AppointmentBase service.

We call only contacts that fit your ideal customer profile

We work with you to define your ideal customer profile and find candidates in our database of 500 million B2B contacts at 300 million businesses who are most likely to convert, based on competitive intelligence and other fit indicators. AppointmentBase services are offered exclusively for contacts with job descriptions of Manager or higher who are evaluating technology purchases. We ensure the quality of the sales appointments we book by interviewing and qualifying only the best candidates.

We use Intent to find prospects who are ready to buy

AppointmentBase uses powerful Intent Signal Monitoring intelligence from our InsightBase® Version 4.0 software to identify prospects, Buying Groups, and Demand Units within organizations who are actively researching purchases. InsightBase 4.0 uses AI, machine learning, and natural language processing to gather and review millions of daily intent signals and then organizes this activity (web searches, read articles, content downloads, social media activity and more) around topics that are essential to your solution and markets. InsightBase's advanced Relevance Engine analytics find Intent Signals and trends that go beyond simple averages. And we use this intelligence to find prospects who are ready to buy.

We become experts in your business

Scripted prospecting calls can result in high cancellation rates – prospects often agree to appointments just to get off the phone. Our team works with you to understand the business drivers and competitive advantages that motivate a prospect to buy from your company. Understanding these nuances helps us develop conversation points that move beyond scripted questionnaires and identify true company/product fit. We engage prospects in consultative dialogs that reveal their pain points and immediately reinforce your brand. When we schedule a sales call, the prospect is genuinely engaged and wants to meet with your sales team.

We seamlessly hand off the prospect relationship

Making the sale is about building a relationship. And our AppointmentBase team makes sure the positive relationship we help develop transitions seamlessly to your sales team. Every appointment we book is accompanied by a comprehensive opportunity synopsis that details key insights we gathered during the prospecting interview. Sales can move the conversation forward with complete confidence, knowing it won't lose credibility by covering old ground. Our team manages appointments via a shared calendar and handles any rescheduling, if necessary, maintaining a courteous and professional image throughout the engagement.

We are committed to the process

Effective B2B prospecting is an effort, requiring as many as five calls to qualify the prospect and book an appointment. Sales spends as much as 25 percent of its time prospecting and qualifying leads. That's a valuable resource that should be devoted to closing deals. And SDRs can become frustrated with the process – their time is often best spent nurturing inbound leads. Our experienced call professionals are committed to calling on sales-ready opportunities until they book an appointment. If a contact is at an early stage of their purchase journey, we offer them a high-value content asset and route them into a nurturing program, dripping the contact into your MAP. And if they prove to not be the right fit, we end the engagement gracefully.

We make a great first impression

A call from a prospector is often a buyer's first impression of your brand. You can't risk trusting it to inexperienced or entry level staff. Our professionals' commitment to excellence is second to none. We coach and mentor our in-language prospectors, and audit calls to ensure that we represent your product and brand in the best possible light. And we can quickly scale prospecting efforts to meet your current need.
